RICH DELGADO

Life Groups & Serve Teams Coordinator

Hello,

Welcome to another exciting semester of LifeGroups and ServeTeams at Resurrection Life Church! Once again there are AMPLE topics, times, and locations for you to connect with others, give your time and effort for the sake of others, all to the Glory of the Father. Don't miss the vast opportunities to Love Others and Love God by fellowshipping and serving with others.

The theme for this year's groups is, "These are our people!" In the book, Power of Place by Daniel Grothe, he talks about the power of stability when we honor the relationships those around us. Jesus prayed explicitly to the Father for his disciples as those who were given to Him. In LifeGroups and ServeTeams we put to action the Biblical principles of healthy sowing and reaping for the sake of growth, resilience, healing, and sense of belonging of others in our community, church body included!

LifeGroup and ServeTeam leaders have a passion to see you connected. Ask them about the groups they lead, and how you can participate. Mother Teresa said, "if you want to change the world, go home and love your family." We are the light of the world, starting with this area. Share the life in Jesus that you have – it's worth the investment!

10 BENEFITS OF CHURCH SMALL GROUPS

By William Boekestein

1. DISCIPLESHIP

Small groups provide opportunities for believers to learn from each other as they apply the gospel within the intimacy of relationships (Titus 2:1–8). “Who is Jesus?” (cf. Matt. 16:15) is critical to hear from the pulpit. But we also need friends to help us wrestle through that question face to face. We need people who are willing to get to know us so they can help us walk with Christ more faithfully (Acts 18:24–26).

2. STUDY

Some Christian groups meet to discuss and apply Scripture. Of course, there are pitfalls to group Bible study which the elders should work to prevent by providing good materials and capable, accountable group leaders. But by discussing and applying Scripture together, members can learn to understand not only the Bible, but also each other, so that each will know better how to love the other. The combination of a capable Bible teacher and eager learners, all exchanging ideas together, can be powerful.

3. CURIOSITY

When small group leaders cultivate an environment of openness and trust, group members are encouraged to ask questions they might not ask elsewhere. “I heard the pastor use the word ‘justification’ before. Now I just heard it again. What does it mean?”

4. ACCOUNTABILITY

When we think about church accountability, we are right to think about elders (Titus 1:5–9). But elders should first equip God’s people to work out their problems together. Every member should encourage and gently urge their brothers and sisters to better follow the Lord (Matt. 18:15–20; Gal. 6:1–2). But how can we exhort others to “contend earnestly for the faith” (Jude 1:3) if we rarely witness them practice the faith outside of corporate worship?

5. SHEPHERDING

If small groups can help believers assist each other, they can also help elders shepherd their flocks with greater familiarity and empathy. Model-elder Paul “lived among” the believers at Asia (Acts 20:18) so that he knew how to proclaim what was helpful from house to house (v. 20).

6. EVANGELISM

If we fervently believe in the power of the means of grace then small group meetings can be an important stepping stone to people coming to church. Likewise, many church members might find it easier to invite friends to a small group who are unready to come to church.

7. HOSPITALITY

Many believers feel drawn to practice the biblical imperative of loving those to whom they have no natural bond (Heb. 13:2, Rom. 12:13, etc.), but they don't always know how to begin. The very thought of hosting non-family members can intimidate. But as believers gather in homes for food and spiritual conversation, those present can witness hospitality blossoming from theory to practice.

8. COMMITMENT

Many churches have a number of guests or occasional visitors "orbiting" the church; they are considering landing but not sure if or how they can. Small groups can provide a way for those who are trying—or considering whether they would like to try—to break into the life of the church.

9. PRAYER

In the New Testament believers prayed together "with one accord" (Acts 4:24). Believers pray in private and in their family networks. In corporate worship, they pray heartily while the minister voices the words for the community. But in small groups, children and parents, neighbors and friends, elders and new converts help each other come to the throne of grace, articulating their praise and petitions in personalized words and accents. In such settings, we can learn to pray even as we appreciate the fatherhood of God among believers.

10. SOCIALIZING

Fellowship is not a spiritually-neutral activity. As we catch up with friends and make new ones, we practice our calling to understand and love each other. As we share and listen to stories, we learn how others are attempting to intersect the common life and the sacred life.

Small groups can help us develop a greater sense of Christian community in a disconnected age. They can facilitate the formation of deeper Christian friendships, encourage greater spiritual accountability among church members, and become a natural opportunity for inviting unbelieving and unchurched (or under-churched) neighbors to interact with a covenant community.

Small groups should never supplant the church. But they can provide a setting where the church begins to experience the kind of closeness that will characterize the life of someone who loves and follows Jesus.
